Gabriel Ramos and Tony Zou spent three days in Massachusetts in June, attending the Congress of Future Medical Leaders.

The congress is an honors-only program for high school students interested in becoming physicians or careers in the medical research fields.

Gabriel and Tony joined students from across the country to hear Nobel laureates and National Medal of Science winners speak about leading medical research. They listened to advice from Ivy League and top medical school deans on what to expect in medical school and heard stories told by patients who are living medical miracles.

Gabriel and Tony were inspired by fellow teen medical science prodigies and learned about cutting-edge advances and the future in medicine and medical technology.
