Over the summer, Symone Hinton learned about contemporary global issues while taking a two-week college course at American University.

After graduating high school, Symone hopes to pursue an education in global politics or international relations. She is interested in development and national security issues. She takes many high-level academic courses at North Pocono and is a member of National Honor Society.

The daughter of Jeanette and Dan Hinton, Symone has held a student council office since middle school and is the senior class president.

She is a medalist and member of the Science Olympiad team, a varsity football cheerleader who is a co-captain of the team this year, and runs the 100m and 300m hurdles, pole vaults and high jumps for the girls track team.

Outside of school, Symone dances at the Kelly Patrick Studio of Dance and works part time at the Olde Brook Inn.
